

Ten Ideas-

- Zoom: what makes it funny?

- Awkward silence
- Not being muted
- Music lessons on zoom
- Detention on zoom (refer to tik tok video)
- Pets interrupting zoom
- Parents interrupting zoom
- Gossip and catch up with friends on zoom (awkward)
- Being muted while trying to talk (think about if this happened during a really dramatic read through for a movie, and the person was muted)
- Obsessively checking your mic to make sure your muted
- Zoom university

Top favorite ideas-

- Being muted and trying to talk
- Awkward silence
- Not being muted while not trying to talk
- Obsessively checking mic

Next steps-

- Write jokes for each of these final four topics

Monologue style jokes-

My jokes-

- Being muted while trying to talk is the worst thing that can happen when you are trying to get a point across. Imagine in a movie during a big argument scene. The people are really getting into it, and all the sudden someone says “Oh I can’t hear you.”
- Awkward silence in zooms is like watching your friends’ parents argue. You can’t really say anything because you’re not really part of the discussion, but you want to crack a joke so you feel like everything’s okay.

- I've heard so many stories about people being caught talking about other people when they think they're muted. Personally I would love to hear what people are saying about me. I need to know so I can work on it. - punch up and make it more interesting
- I don't really pay attention in zoom to be honest. But the times I do pay attention are when I'm checking my mic to make sure I'm muted. All the sudden I am a court reporter who is writing down every detail about the most interesting case of the century.

Next steps-

Write up a monologue introduction: